

Assessment and Treatment of the Ataxia Patient

This course consists of practical sessions to experience ataxia and develop treatment ideas for the patient group. There will be theory of the cerebellum principles of treatment of ataxia and patient demonstrations. This is a very practically orientated course.

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

Locomotion & limb workshops

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For a list of tutors please contact the office.

The Vestibular System

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

Core stability

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

Rehabilitation in the critical care environment

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

Trunk and upper quadrant

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

Neurophysiological basis of spinal pathophysiology

This course will review the neurophysiological basis of different clinical presentations of patients with conditions such as MS, incomplete spinal cord injury etc. Issues such as spasms, clonus, spasticity, weakness etc will be discussed. Short video clips showing different clinical presentations will be shown. These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.

A problem-solving workshop for Occupational Therapists specifically focusing on the treatment of the adult neurological patient

This course is for OT's interested in neurology who want to focus on the development of their clinical skills based on the Bobath Concept. The course consists of lecture material, patient demonstrations and practical sessions. Some neurological experience necessary.

These and other additional courses can be organised and tailored to individual course organisers needs. For list of tutors please contact the office.